

HKIPM Induction Talk 2013 at BRE of PolyU

The Programme Award Co-ordinator of the MSc/PgD in Construction and Real Estate, Dr Daniel W.M. Chan, Associate Professor of the Department of Building and Real Estate (BRE) of PolyU, successfully invited two senior representatives from the Executive Council of the Hong Kong Institute of Project Management (HKIPM), to launch an induction/career talk towards their full-time and part-time MSc taught postgraduate students held on 6 October 2013 (Sunday) afternoon at room TU101 of PolyU.

The purpose of the talk is to let the students know more about HKIPM and routes to professional membership as a project manager, as well as raise the profile of the project management profession in Hong Kong. The talk was well attended by over 30 students and most of the audience found it informative and useful to their future personal career developments in both Hong Kong and Mainland China. Prospective students were cordially invited to join HKIPM as student members, associate members or full members after the talk to start their career journey heading for a competent professional project manager. At least 20 students have submitted their application forms to join HKIPM up to 5 November 2013.
